

Who are we?

Educational Psychologists (EPs) have been trained to understand how children behave and learn.

Who do we see?

We see all sorts of children. Some children need help with:

...their school work

...their behaviour choices

...or getting on with others.

Some children need help with....

...getting around

...seeing or hearing

...speaking, listening and communicating

...or dealing with their

What will happen?

If an EP is asked to help, they may:

- Chat to you and your family at home, or meet you in school.
- Talk to people who know you well.
- Spend time in your class.
- Talk to you about yourself and find out what you like and what you don't like.
- Do thinking games, activities and puzzles with you to learn and to see how you go about things.
- Come to a meeting about you to talk about how to make things better for you in school..

Private Stuff

Sometimes it can be hard to talk about things that are bothering or upsetting you—or to say how you feel. You might be worried about the EP telling other people.

Before the EP tells another adult anything that you have said, the EP will check that you are OK with this.

We need to keep you safe. If you tell the EP something that makes them think that you are in real danger they may need to tell another adult who can help. The EP will talk to you about which adult they will talk to and ask if you would like to be there.

Everyone will work together to make things better for you.

If you have any questions about working with an EP, the EP will be happy to try and answer them when you meet.

Your teacher or SENCO may also be able to help.
